

People for Proper Policing in North Wales

Chief Constable £129,759 (plus benefits and generous relocation package)

Are you the right candidate for the job? If so, we can offer you the opportunity to live in the best place in the UK. As well as the unique blend of policing challenges, North Wales has a rich mix of breath-taking scenery, history and culture providing a quality of life second to none.

North Wales Police is currently one of the most effective and efficient forces in the UK. To achieve our goal of becoming the very best, we need a chief constable with a far-sighted strategic vision and inspirational leadership skills; a special person with the ability to manage, motivate and innovate in equal measure.

Working closely with the Police Authority, it will be essential to build positive and productive relationships with key community partners and stakeholders, including the Welsh Assembly Government. You will be customer-focused and develop the role of neighbourhood policing in a way that complements the wider community safety agenda. At the same time, you must be committed to combating serious and organised crime as well ensuring a first class counter terrorist operation. It is a difficult balance to achieve. That's why we need a confident, dynamic decision-maker with sound judgement and strong interpersonal skills; an excellent communicator with drive and determination.

Because of the relevance of the Welsh language, the successful candidate will be expected to indicate a positive approach and achieve a measure of competency for which full support will be given.

Find out more by visiting the Force and Authority websites on: www.north-wales.police.uk
www.nwalespa.org

Contact the North Wales Police Authority's Chief Executive, Kelvin Dent on 01492 804903 or Kelvin.dent@nthwales.pnn.police.uk for an informal discussion or to request an application pack.

Closing date: 17th August 2009.

The PPP comments Brunstrom has gone and is almost forgotten, his appointment was clouded in mystery and doubt about even it's legality.

The appointment of his successor was, and maybe still is being manipulated by the government and other vested interests. This re-advertisement appears to say and emphasise the right things which we agree wholeheartedly with. The job is a wonderful opportunity for a senior officer from a major constabulary who knows the real world of crime and it's causes and who really believes and practices community policing without the PC correctness, diversity obsessions, distractions and distortions of the past regime. Much of this will be endemic in NWPF's culture so strength of character and purpose will be required.

Such a chief will have the full support of the PPP.

The verbatim advert is at http://www.nwalespa.org/Content/Resources/advert_for_web.pdf