

“ PPP ”
People for Proper Policing in North Wales

Families speak of loss at cycling tragedy inquest.

Jun 4 2007 By Roland Hughes Daily Post

Families of all four bikers who died in the Rhyl Cycling Club tragedy today spoke publicly for the first time about their loss.

A four-week inquest into the deaths of the cyclists on January 8 last year near St George opened in Abergele this morning.

Sue Broadbent widow of Maurice Broadbent said 'someone was to blame' for the tragedy and they would wait for all the details to come out in the inquest.